

ISBN: 9781917455343

October 2025

Category: FICTION / Dystopian

Paperback, 140mm x 216mm

400 pages, £11.99

First Dawn Breaks

L.G. JENKINS

- The end has come. The fight for Tulo's future begins. It's a city on the edge of anarchy.

The Watches have been reset to zero — branding every citizen a criminal — and the drones are striking without mercy.

- As chaos erupts in the streets, Ajay is the only one who might be able to reverse the disaster. But he's still a wanted man, and every move brings him closer to death... or redemption.

- Genni is torn between loyalty and justice, love and survival. As she builds safe houses in the shadows and grapples with betrayals that cut deep, her path collides with old enemies and impossible choices. Her brother has orders to arrest her. The regime wants her silenced. And yet, a spark of hope refuses to die.

- Inside Command, Esabel Hevas fights to maintain control, even if it means letting war come to her doorstep. But when the price of power becomes too high, the foundations of her rule begin to crack—and someone else is waiting to take her place.

Told through six gripping perspectives, First Dawn Breaks by L.G. Jenkins is a haunting, high-stakes conclusion where trust is fragile, power is deadly and freedom demands sacrifice.

AUTHOR BIO

Lydia Grace Jenkins is a young, Christian novelist with a degree in English & Foreign Literature from the University of York. An avid reader, Lydia loves to explore different genres, characters, and thought-provoking ideas, all of which inform and inspire her own writing. She has a particular passion for the lives of young people as they begin to navigate the working world and adult life. Lydia works in marketing and lives in York, England, with her husband Stephen.

malcolm down
PUBLISHING